

Build Your Trust in IntelliCare Clinics

People have a general impression that HMO clinics are not as good as hospitals.

They say that clinics are not as vastly equipped in terms of facilities and medical experts that only a major hospital can offer. This means that their services might not be good enough. Some of them actually say that since the costs are far lesser than those of hospitals, the services might not be at par.

But leading HMO IntelliCare is helping make all these change.

IntelliCare cardholders have many reasons to be satisfied. For one, opting to go to the clinic puts their worry about high medical costs aside.

IntelliCare's Assistant Medical Director Dr. Gerry Jiao who is in charge of the recruitment of doctors/consultants and setting medical standards, says countless of IntelliCare's cardholders who have gone to its clinics have actually realized that it was a better option cost-wise considering the service and care the clinic gave them was generally the same major hospitals usually offer. Furthermore, the clinics reduce the hassle of competing for time with a multitude of patients who seek the advise of hospital professionals.

Each Intellicare clinic has its own laboratory which delivers final results.

only in terms of facilities and medical experts, but also in the way that the clinics render its services.

There are in fact already six IntelliCare owned and managed clinics (a 7th is set to open in December)—Solid Mills Building in Makati, Estrellita Building along Montillano Street in Alabang, Emerald Avenue in Ortigas Center, Old National Highway in Calamba, Laguna, inside Laguna Technopark in Biñan, and its latest in UN Avenue, Manila — all of them have become excellent medical facilities outside of a hospital.

Specialists on Board

One of the things that have come from IntelliCare is the fact that Intellicare is on the road towards advancing further its clinic services. It's U.N. Avenue clinic in fact boast of a brand new x-ray machine for better diagnosis of any body part.

They are doctors who practice in hospitals. IntelliCare clinics have specialists that have since served the many respiratory, gastrointestinal, cardiovascular and hypertensive cases that come to their clinics every day.

Its team of experts include cardiologists, pulmonologists, obstetrician-gynecologists, ENT specialists, and in three clinics, dental professionals. At its UN Avenue branch, they actually offer rehabilitation/sports medicine specialists who offer medical service to orthopaedic cases.

Yet, even when equipped with the best professionals, IntelliCare of course continuously hires medical doctors to better serve its many cardholders.

The Right Facilities

In addressing the concern of patients over the facilities found in HMO clinics, IntelliCare has taken steps to upgrade its set of facilities.

Aside from its already existing laboratory capabilities which do blood chemistry tests, urinalysis, fecalysis and machines such as an X-ray, each IntelliCare clinic boasts of an ultrasound machine.

Also, three of its clinics already have dental facilities, with duly licensed dental professionals.

Laboratory Centralization

Having the right and enough laboratory equipment is also one of the concerns of patients. Since a majority of patients visit the clinics for pre-employment medical exams and regular check-ups, IntelliCare is in the process of upgrading further its already competent laboratory systems.

While there is enough laboratory equipment to address the basic diagnostic requirements in each clinic, IntelliCare is also in the process of centralizing its laboratory. To IntelliCare, the integrity of the results of the lab exams cannot be compromised. A centralized laboratory system means a more focused handling of the processes.

For this purpose, IntelliCare has made its clinic in Makati its central laboratory and its Shalanda Plaza office its central
